

Measuring what matters

Insights from measurement and working together towards SDG 12.3

Dublin, 10th July 2019
Radisson Blu, St Helen's Hotel,
Stillorgan, Dublin

9AM to 2PM

FORUM_{ON} FOOD
WASTE
2019

Join us for a mix of presentations and panel discussions with Q&A, moderated by Philip Boucher-Hayes

Event/Topic	Speaker
Opening remarks by Minister Richard Bruton, Department of Communications, Climate Action and Environment Welcome address by Laura Burke, EPA Director General
Session 1. Gaining insights through measurement
Why measuring food waste matters – an update on food waste prevention actions in Ireland	Odile Le Bolloch, EPA
Quantifying food waste in food services and retail sectors in Ireland	Shane Colgan, EPA & Sarah Broderick, Clean Technology Centre
BREAK
Key note: Stop wasting food to cut climate change	Iain Clunie, Zero Waste Scotland
Project Drawdown: Solutions to reverse global warming – Reduced Food Waste	Chad Frishmann, Project Drawdown
Panel discussion: insights gained through measurement of food waste: Explore how measuring food waste gives insight in to where the issues are, how much food is being wasted and identifies opportunities to reduce it, and to highlight how reducing food waste is an important measure in company CSR and climate actions.
Session 2. Collaboration for solutions – working collaboratively towards the UN Sustainable Development Goal 12.3.
From Measurement to Action: the business impact of food waste	Christopher Hill, FoodCloud
LIFE-Food.Waste.StandUP – Collaboration along the food chain: an Italian case study	Vincenzo Palumbo, Fondazione Bancoalimentare Onlus
Session 3. Moderated dialogue: To explore how can we move from measurement to action, working collaboratively towards SDG 12.3 Shane Colgan (EPA), Martin Hofler (Bord Bia), Eamonn Quinn (Retail Action Group Chair), Iseult Ward (FoodCloud)
Closing remarks, followed by lunch	